SOVIET ARMY, FLUSHED WITH KHARKOV VICTORY, DRIVES NORTHWEST TO GAIN OREL; BREAK THROUGH IN SOUTHEAST

Anxious to Retake Orel, Last Principal Point of Resistance On 1941 Nazi Defense Line—Steadily Pursue The Remnants of the German Army

By Natalia Rene
I. N. S. Staff Correspondent

MOSCOW, Feb. 17—(INS)—The high-spirited Soviet Army, flushed with victory which resulted in recapture of the Ukraine industrial capital of Kharkov, battered its way north-westward today in a drive to retake Orel, last principal point of resistance on the 1941 Nazi defense line.

Front-line dispatches said that the Red Army had broken through an important chain of German strongpoints 40 to 50 miles southeast of Orel, 210 miles north of Kharkov. Russian troops, although meeting fierce German resistance, steadily overcame all opposition and pounded forward in the direction of Orel at the junction of the Orlik and Oka Rivers.

The Soviet High Command announced at noon that the victorious forces which drove Hitler's hordes from Kharkov were steadily pursuing remnants of the German Army to the west and that sizeable forces were routed.

A terrific toll of German troops were exacted when the Red Army's mechanized columns closed in on Kharkov, the noon communiqué said. Vast quantities of military equipment also were seized or destroyed.

"The number of stores and transport vehicles taken now is being counted," it was said.

Large tank formations were rushed into the battle west of Kharkov by the Germans in a desperate effort to close the gaping breach smashed into the Nazi line by the Russians. Reports from the battlefield said a savage armored engagement was raging west of the city.

North of Kursk in the drive against Orel, which dominates highways and rail lines leading to the Nazi base at Bryansk to the west and Moscow, the Red Army engaged the Germans in several offensive battles.

A series of inhabited localities were seized when the Russian troops smashed the Nazi resistance in one area. The Soviets continued to advance after inflicting severe losses on the enemy, the High Command said.

Stubborn resistance was offered by Nazi units protecting retreating forces in the lower Donets basin, it was said. Southwest of Voroshilovgrad, the communiqué said, the Soviet offensive continued successfully despite German opposition.

"One inhabited locality after another is being liberated and the enemy is sustaining heavy losses," the communiqué said.

In the Krasnoarmeisk area the Germans were said to be trying to stem the Soviet advance at all costs.

"But counter-attacks are being repelled and heavy losses in men and material inflicted on the enemy," the communiqué added.

Mrs. T. F. Mellnik Tells Of Life on Corregidor

ANDALUSIA, Feb. 18—First-hand information of life on Corregidor, illustrated by means of photographs and colored motion pictures, was afforded Bensalem Rotary Club members last evening when they were addressed by Mrs. Thima Fries Mellnik, wife of Major Mellnik, the latter a graduate of the U. S. Military Academy at West Point, and now a prisoner of war in Japan.

Mrs. Mellnik, who lived at Corregidor prior to its evacuation at the start of the present war, described life as she found it in the islands. She mentioned that the island in question is six miles long and 1½ miles wide at its widest point.

With the days being extremely hot, she said that the officers did their physical work and drilling in the early morning, and the paper work between noon and midafternoon. The rainy season was mentioned as being most unpleasant, with there being no warning of rain, then a torrential down-pour which continued for long periods. The rainy season ends in October, and weather is found much more likeable, with nights always cool.

Describing the tunnel in Melinda Hill, Mrs. Mellnik mentioned that the main tunnel is large enough for two cars to pass. In the smaller tunnels spreading out from this are located: apparatus for distilling water; a hospital, refrigeration system; theatre, bowling alleys, etc. For two weeks prior to the fall of Corregidor all of the people were confined to the tunnel. Mrs. Mellnik told that there were on the island 5,000 to 6,000 people, of which 1500 were soldiers. Troops were posting in steadily before she left at Christmastime of 1941.

The pictures shown included views of Manila, beautiful scenery and flowers. Some aerial pictures had been censored. For a time before going to the Philippines Mrs. Mellnik resided at Pearl Harbor.

S. Penn Salmon presided at the dinner session.

Gold Award Received; Membership Increased

MORRISVILLE, Feb. 17—A gold award for securing a 10 per cent increase in membership during the past year has been received by the Parent-Teacher Association of Morrisville, according to announcement by Mrs. Frank Miller. A business meeting of the association was held a few nights ago.

It was decided that Miss Margaret Strauss, corresponding secretary, would succeed Miss Mary Schuyler as recording secretary.

Mrs. Fielding reported that the block mothers' visit had been completed and that a list of the names would be made public within a short time. During the past week, free cookies were given to all pupils of William E. Case School at the afternoon recess periods. Due to the shortage of Government surplus commodities, the cookies are being served in place of hot lunches. This plan will continue indefinitely.

Mrs. Marvin Young is in charge of the health poster contest now being conducted throughout the schools, in which the seventh and eighth grades will compete with the ninth and tenth grades. Prizes will be awarded at the March meeting of the P. T. A. Miss Weaver is assisting students of her art classes with the posters.

The annual P. T. A. card party will be held on March 15. The next regular meeting will be held on February 23, in the cafeteria at Summerseat. A Founder's Day program will be presented under the direction of Miss Margaret Watkins. Miss Overbeck, a representative of the Dairy Council, will also present a puppet show.

FELLOWSHIP CABINET MAKES RALLY PLANS

Bristol Group Arranges For 3 or 4 Small Rallies, Replacing Main One

READLER IS RE-ELECTED

HULMEVILLE, Feb. 17—In lieu of one main rally during March for Bristol Group of the Methodist Youth Fellowship, three or four smaller rallies will be held. This arrangement was made at a meeting of the cabinet and officers of local Fellowships held in Neshaunty Methodist Church, last evening, the decision being made due to the transportation problems.

On the 19th of March, Bristol, Harman and Hulmeville Methodist groups will meet for a rally, possibly in Bristol, bus transportation being available. On the same night Morrisville, Emille and Fallsington groups will meet together, place to be designated. Newtown, Langhorne and Trevese will possibly arrange a rally together. More definite plans as to places for holding such and which groups will assemble together will be announced later.

The Rev. Charles Weller, Morrisville, councillor of the group, was present, as well as several other clergymen and Fellowship officials. Franklin Readler, of the Hulmeville Fellowship, presided. Mr. Readler was re-elected president of the Bristol Group.

A letter was read from the Rev. Robert Kieffer, former member of the Group, who is now serving as an army chaplain. The young people had donated a number of song books for the Rev. Kieffer to use in his work at camp.

Refreshments were served by Hulmeville members.

RAID TEST IS HELD UNDER NEW SIGNALS

First Signal, the Blue, Received Here at 10:52; No Yellow Signal

PLAN FOR "ALL CLEAR"

The first air raid test to be held under the newly-adapted army signals took place this morning. The first signal received at Bristol police headquarters, was the blue signal at 10:52. The yellow signal was not received here. Sirens and whistles immediately gave the two minute steady blast upon receipt of the blue signal.

At 11:02 the red signal was received, and the steady blast on whistles and the fluctuating note of the sirens was sounded. Five minutes later the second blue signal came through, when the steady blast was again given and at 11:17 the "all clear" was received.

Air raid wardens and emergency police went to their posts, several of the emergency police wearing for the first time their white capes, and carrying clubs, equipment recently procured.

John Healey, recently appointed chief zone warden, was at the police headquarters; and his deputy, William H. H. Fine, was at the control center. Mr. Healey recently named Mr. Fine and also Wesley Spencer as deputies.

The air raid wardens and emergency police are working under a new system, due to the fact there is no audible "all clear" signal under the new set-up. Certain families in each zone have been designated to listen for the "all clear" over the radios, and they in turn will notify the wardens and police. In addition to this the bells at police call

READING MAN PLEADS GUILTY TO UNLAWFUL HORSE TEETH FILING

C. H. Smith Accused of Unlawful Practice of Veterinary Medicine

IN SELLERSVILLE AREA

Judge Keller Suspends Sentence But Smith Must Pay Costs

DOYLESTOWN, Feb. 17—C. H. Smith, 65, of Reading, pleaded guilty before Judge Keller yesterday to a charge of unlawful practice of veterinary medicine in the Sellersville section.

Smith specialized in filing horses' teeth, testimony revealed.

Dr. Vincent Ruth, of Franconia, a veterinarian, testified that he saw Smith—on one occasion only—file a horse's teeth, and then reported him to the State Board, which has required a license since 1915.

"I have been filing horses' teeth for 40 years and nothing else," Smith told Judge Keller.

"I was able to support seven children through my profession."

"I am sent out by all Reading veterinarians to file teeth and in fact the 'vets' will not file teeth. I did not know that a license was necessary or I would have gone to Harrisburg to see what I could do about it. I never had any previous complaint from the State."

Smith worked for years with the outstanding veterinarians in Reading. Judge Keller suspended sentence on condition that Smith pay the costs.

"If the State Department cannot say whether an unlicensed man should or should not stop filing horses' teeth, there is no reason why the Court should impose any penalty."

Smith informed the Court that the Secretary of the State Veterinarians' Commission had said to him recently, "I don't want to inform you to stop or not to stop filing horses' teeth."

Judge Boyer handed down the following opinions:

Collins vs. D'Alessandro—Automobile accident case: The jury rendered a verdict in favor of the defendant. Defendant filed motion for a new trial. New trial refused.

Thorne vs. Jones—Habeas corpus: Petition to intervene dismissed with leave to file an amended petition.

Ellinger vs. Neel—A suit for damages for malicious prosecution. Jury rendered a verdict of $450 in favor of plaintiff. Defendant filed a motion for a new trial. New trial refused.

Anthony Raccagno vs. Leola Hall Raccagno—Divorce: Master's report approved and decree to be entered on payment of costs.

Virginia Pretz Wood vs. Lloyd

A card party is arranged by the organization for March 5th in the Memorial House.

Mrs. Warren Randall, membership chairman, reported that in receiving one new member the total is now 100.

POST-WAR "PIONEERING"

Gen. Hugh Drum predicts that after this war there will be a "migration of men, talents and capital" from the United States to the far corners of the world to engage in trade, agriculture, medicine or exploration. "There will be a real chance for pioneering," says General Drum.

Secretary Knox, home from a 20,000-mile inspection tour in the Pacific, gives a picture of present pioneering. "Noumea is just a little piece of America set down in New Caledonia. It has the quality of a mining town in boom days," Mr. Knox says. "The natives never saw so much money and the wave of prosperity is beyond their wildest dreams. It is marvelous how we get things done overnight."

When this war is ended American soldiers will have learned what life is like in Europe, Africa, islands of the Atlantic and Pacific oceans, Asia and parts of South America. The United States could thus have a large role in a postwar migration of peoples of the sort General Drum foresees.

It will be a postwar paradox, as the size of the world shrinks, as knowledge and experience expand, opportunities for pioneering will increase.

SIZE OF AFRICA

From time to time America renews its acquaintance with the continent of Africa, always with surprise at its size. It is the largest unit of terrain on the globe except Asia.

Always associated with Africa is the desert in the northern part of it, Sahara. It is as extensive as popular fancy imagines it to be. It covers a larger area than the United States. Incidentally, it is pictured usually as flat. Some of it is and some of it is not. It has mountains. Between the Atlantic coast in North Africa and the Nile, a stretch of 2,500 miles, there is not a river.

Africa, long known as the Dark Continent, may be illuminated eventually. Its potential water power can furnish the electricity and the airplane can make its deepest recesses readily accessible. Indeed, the airplane may be the prime factor in rescuing the interior from remoteness.

Because of its topographical conformation Africa has defeated development through inland navigation, all its great streams in falling from the central high tablelands creating cataracts that impeded boat traffic, a form of transportation which played a leading role in development of other continents.

When House Republican Leader Joseph Martin named this the Victory Congress, he interpreted the election returns correctly.

Does banning of pleasure driving in seventeen eastern states mean that drivers must cultivate a sour expression?

James A. Farley, who enjoys an excellent reputation as a prophet, predicts that the war will end in 1943.

Tire recapping may soon be available to everyone without the necessity of a ration order, it is reported. With tires the motorist can continue to drive if he has gasoline.

The only alternative to putting in a Victory garden this year will be to put in the same amount of time explaining why there is none.

The Great Game of Politics

would scarcely produce enough food for its own 1943 demands. When the reasons for this are sought you get into the field of bitter controversy in which charges and counter charges of lack of foresight and incapacity in responsible places fly thick and fast.

KEEPING ALOOF from these it, nevertheless, seems certain that not later than April, in addition to canned goods, meats, cheese, butter, fats and oils will be far more restricted than any of us have dreamed. And that eggs, chickens, vegetables, fruits and milk will be much more difficult to obtain. One reason for this will be labor shortage; another will be obstacles to transporting from market to market. In brief, the available food supply must be stretched and thinned in order to go around. There is a sound argument in favor of rationing without warning in order to prevent hoarding, but there is also sound reason for not permitting drastic food rationing to come as too great a shock. There will be no lack of nourishing food. To repeat, no one will starve, but a revision downward of our eating habits and a restriction of our appetites appears unavoidable. Every authority agrees about that.

THE POINT is that in general terms there should be some cushioning so that the jar will not be too great. Under the circumstances, two things appear essential. One is that the necessity and the reasons should be clearly presented before the fact. The President, it would seem, is the best person to go that. If the presentation is to be convincing, it ought not to be left to a subordinate. The other is that the food-rationing and food-production supervision ought to be in the hands of a man or men in whose wisdom and experience in this particular business the people have confidence. Not many think it is in such hands now. If these two things are done, there is no reason to feel that the people as a whole will not tighten their belts without grumbling, and perhaps, be better off for doing so.

WHAT IT all adds up to is that the people can "take it" if they understand what it is about, why it has to be done and that it is being done competently. There has been a vast deal of oratory about food and many statements besides those of Mr. Hoover and Mr. Wickard. What we have not had is a clear, simple presentation of the whole critical food situation by someone whose words carry weight and upon whom responsibility rests. The time for that kind of presentation is before the shock—in other words, now.

Today's Quiet Moment (By the Rev. James R. Galley) Pastor, Bristol Presbyterian Church

O heavenly Father, Who hast blessed us with the assurance of Thy presence in all the walks of life, we thank Thee for the assuring voice of Christ which says, "Be not afraid." We live in the midst of so many things which test the courage of man, and we face so many trials over which we cannot be victorious in our own strength; but when we see Christ walking toward us and hear His voice, the burden is lifted, and we are enabled once more to go forward in new strength. So help us, O God, to listen, to hear, and to obey. Through Jesus Christ our Lord, Amen.

That Extra Something!

...You can spot it every time

Andre Kostelanetz, in "The Pause That Refreshes On The Air", broadcast every Sunday afternoon for Coca-Cola, brings you music with distinction. His listening audience is counted in millions. It's the extra touch Andre Kostelanetz gives to music that gives this program a character all its own. Coca-Cola, too, won distinction by giving folks something extra in refreshment.

Raise a frosty bottle of Coca-Cola to your lips. Where else than in Coca-Cola itself will you find this unique taste? It more than quenches thirst. It adds refreshment . . . refreshment that goes into energy.

Fifty-seven years of experience and skill, with choicest ingredients—create a quality in Coca-Cola that never loses the freshness of its appeal.

Wartime limits the supply of Coca-Cola. Those times when you cannot get it, remember: Coke, being first choice, sells out first. Ask for it each time.

Intermission for musicians means a trek to the Coca-Cola cooler. These artists look to the pause that refreshes for quick energy, complete relaxation. Ask your musician friend what drink he prefers!

BRISTOL HIGH REVERSES TABLES AND DEFEATS N. J. SCHOOL FOR DEAF; MESSANELLI DROPS WINNING GOAL

Bristol High reversed the tables on the New Jersey School for Deaf yesterday afternoon on the home floor, winning over the Jerseyites, 35-32, in a hard-fought match.

Although "Johnny" Messanelli dropped in the field goal which decided the game for Bristol, it was the fine shooting from the foul mark which gave the Bunnies the margin of victory.

For the first time this season, the Bristol players dropped in fouls for a high average, sinking 9 out of 12 shots. Foul shooting like this in several previous games, especially the Morrisville tilt, would have changed the scores of games.

The Deaf School boys outscored Bristol from the field, 14-13, and took the lead away from the localities on several occasions until a last ditch rally was climaxed with Messanelli's goal and victory. Bristol was trailing by one point at the quarter-mark 11-10 but managed to even it up at half-time, 14-14. The Jersey School took a 24-21 lead at the third period when Congo went on a scoring spree but Bristol came back strong in the final eight minutes to score 14 points and win the contest.

Messanelli and Maag were high scorers for the winners with 10 and 11 points, respectively. Congo scored 13 points to lead the losers. In the previous meeting this season, N. J. S. D. scored a 37-29 triumph over Bristol.

In the junior variety tilt, Coach Clarence Bartholomew's boys again faced the Deaf School boys, this time the score being 43-19. Earlier this season, the Bristol Jayvees swamped the N. J. S. D. Jayvees, 32-19.

Fisher and Massi again led the Bristol scoring with 13 and 10 points, respectively.

RUNAWAY FATAL

PATERSON, N. J. — (INS) — Elsie Hardy, 16, who told police she decided to run away after her parents had lectured her, died in Paterson General Hospital of injuries suffered when the rope she constructed of sheets and a bedspread broke as she was climbing from the fourth floor of her home.

No Use Having Tanks Unless Put In Action

ried away to the comparative safety of the front line troops.

There the stern realities of warfare soon disseminated divisional HQ optimism.

Said one infantry company commander from the slimy depths of his deeply-dug slit trench: "If only we had mountain goats instead of all this expensive armor, we'd have a sporting chance of winning this war."

"It's no use having tanks if you cannot get 'em into action, so show me a tank that can climb 2,000 feet up a mountain side and scupper an artillery post and this war's in the bag; we're in Tunis with the early morning milk delivery."

Light dawned upon your correspondent. Nipping out "bugles," eliminating strong points of resistance, converging with the rest of the attacking forces at a given point seems very easy when it is pointed out on a six-inch map, but with the battle front stretched out before one, it is entirely different.

Mountain roads are built on the lowest mountain, with the high peaks sedulously by-passed. But high peaks providing there are a few mules and trained mountain troops available, present heaven-sent, strong, almost invulnerable tactical posts.

The sinuous corniche-like roads are marvelous for tourist and commercial purposes, but are a dead loss for modern armor, unless, of course, the commanding mountain peaks are free from hostile troops, and, of course, in this war the commanding peaks were most certainly not free from hostile troops.

One twist of the road within range and fire of even a machine-gun could hold up the strongest group of armor.

And there are as many twists in half a mile of a Tunisian road as there are in a one and a half inch corkscrew, so figure it out for yourselves; your correspondent cannot, neither could the slightly bemused company commander.

So the mighty armada of tanks sit behind the lines in well-dispersed array listening to their batteries running down, while the front line is held by the poor benighted infantry who squat out in advanced posts with courage in their hearts and a machine-gun between their knees.

Meanwhile, commandoes, parachutists, reconnoitering battalions scramble up the face of the mountain sides like so many crawling ants and eliminate one by one the enemy strong points; but it's like dabbling the youngest son's acne spots with iodine — one disappears but six more appear.

"Join the Army and see a telephone," suggests the New York Sun in a story about an Oklahoma farm boy. The lad joined the Army Air Force as a mechanic. In the recruiting office, he used a telephone for the first time in his life.

"I just never lived around a telephone," he explained, "but it seems like a good thing if you can understand it!"

Certainly the Army seems to think so. To supply its demands for telephones, radio-telephones, wires and other communications equipment, the factories of the Bell System are running 24 hours a day. Practically all the telephone equipment now being made is going to war. So please keep your calls to the minimum and be brief on the calls you must make.
